A) Richards College of Business

1) Department of Management

a) Nexus program in Supply Chain Management

Request: Add New Program

The Nexus degree in Supply Chain Management is an option for individuals seeking a short-term, focused degree (60 hours; two years). Students will prepare for careers in areas such as logistics, storage and distribution, materials management, production, shipping and receiving, and procurement. Both regionally and nationally, there is a large demand for supply chain-related jobs over the next decade. This program provides another path for the university system to prepare graduates to fill employer needs in this area.

The Nexus program in Supply Chain Management was approved.

III. New Business

Kim Green reported the provision for a chair-elect position on Senate committees.
